TYPE OF CONFLICT

DESCRIPTION OF THE CONFLICT

What this means for you

- The firm may not be able to argue for you as strongly on points where your interests and the other party's differ.
- Information you share may need to be shared with the other party, unless an information barrier is agreed below.
- If a real dispute arises, the firm may have to stop acting for one or both parties, and you may need a new adviser.
- You may take independent advice before signing and may refuse this waiver.

Consent

Your decision

◯ I consent and waive the conflict ◯ I do not consent

☐ I have read this disclosure, had the chance to ask questions and take independent advice, and make this choice freely.

The client may withdraw this consent in writing at any time. Withdrawal does not affect work already done.

General terms

- Governing law. This document is governed by the laws of India.
- Entire agreement. This document is the whole agreement between the parties on its subject and replaces earlier discussions.
- Amendments. Changes are valid only in writing signed by both parties.
- Severability. If a clause is unenforceable, the rest of the document still applies.
- Electronic signatures. The parties agree to sign electronically; electronic signatures and records are valid under the Information Technology Act, 2000.
